Minority Recruiting; Stokes Meets Challenge

By AMY CEADER

Counseling prospective minority students is a challenge Debbie Stokes, Admissions Counselor at SJC, tries to meet by attempting to show them the "energy" of college life. "Approximately 10% of the applications we receive are from minority students," Stokes said. Stokes said there has been an increase in the minority population since last year. "We have seen an increase in those students who apply and actually attend the college," she said. "We have an increase of about 50% in the male population, and about a 500% increase in the female population."

Assurance of support and a feeling of acceptance, are the feelings Stokes tries to achieve in the students she counsels. She points out to the students groups on campus such as the Black Student Union and the Student Association, which try to meet their special needs. "The academic side of the counseling is no different for these students than for the average student," Stokes said. "Two of the biggest concerns for the black student are financial aid and the social environment.

"When I talk to students, I stress the social environment of the campus. I tell them about the mixers, the dorm parties, and the athletic events on campus. It's important for these students to know that although St. Joe is located in a rural area, there are still activities on campus.

"The minority student's taste in music may be slightly different than the average student. Minority students have an interest in structured events such as dances. I explain to the student's that the groups organizing these events try to play a mixture of music."

Stokes stresses the low level of racial tension at St. Joe. At some larger campuses, this is a great problem. Stokes would like to see the minority population at St. Joe double. She would also like to see more on-campus activities sponsored by the college. She would like to see minority students play a more active role on campus.

On February 27, the college will sponsor an Open House for high school students. A group of minority students from Chicago, sponsored by alumni at Lafayette Ford and Jesse Chick Co., will attend the overnight forum. Students will be invited to the basketball game, and to a mixer held on the 27th.

Stokes' recruiting area includes St. Louis, the southern section of Chicago, Northwest Indiana, and Southern Michigan. Stokes has been promoted and next year will have the official title of Minority Advisor.

Lilly Endowment Announces Supplemental Education Awards

INDIANAPOLIS — Students attending Indiana's independent colleges and universities may be eligible to receive supplemental educational assistance of $200 from Lilly Endowment Inc. In order to qualify for next school year, however, they must submit the Indiana Financial Aid Form by March 1, 1988.

The Lilly Endowment Supplemental Award (LESA) program represents an alteration of the Endowment's seven-year $50 million package of student financial assistance announced one year ago. Under the initial program, the Endowment ensures that all Indiana residents attending Indiana public and private institutions will have to pay about the same proportion of their college expenses after federal, state, and parental financial aid have been applied.

In 1987-88, the first year of that program, more than 11,000 students statewide qualified for awards averaging about $550 each; about 4,300 of them received no other form of non-repayable assistance.

Endowment officials explained, however, that because some of Indiana's private colleges are so reasonably priced, very few of their students qualified for Endowment assistance under the initial formula. Therefore, the Endowment has created a supplemental program to ensure that students from all independent colleges will qualify for an award if, after federal, state and parental aid have been applied, they are still paying more than the cost of attending an Indiana public university.

According to Dr. William C. Bonifield, Endowment vice president for education, "The supplemental awards represent our attempt to fine-tune our program of financial assistance. We never intended to penalize the independent colleges that have held the line on cost; the LESA awards correct that unforeseen effect of the original formula."

Endowment officials expect that an additional 4,100 Indiana college students will qualify for Endowment assistance through the supplemental awards. Bonifield said, "Our objective is to help more low- and middle-income families realize that an education beyond high school — and all of its lifelong benefits —

SPRING BREAK

Tom Kuhar, Senior — "I'm going to Jacksonhole, Wyoming because this ski resort is inexpensive, has short lift lines, and offers the largest vertical drop of any U.S. ski resort."

Tom Molloy, Senior — "I'm going to Johnson City, Tennessee with the Baseball Team."

Kim Perkins, Sophomore — "I'm going home to a place which happens to be one of the hottest Spring Break attractions — Florida. I live in Lakeland, but plan to spend some time at Daytona Beach."

Students To Vote on Pres. Term

By NANCY WAGNER

Next Tuesday, March 1, you have the opportunity to exercise your voting power here at Saint Joe's. An idea has been introduced that affects the term of office for the S.A. president, which would consequently change the senate constitution. Instead of the existing fiscal year, the president would be in office according to the calendar year. It would give assistance to the president serving the term starting in January since the previous president already finished the term in December. This alteration would insure continuity within the senate and the programs on campus sponsored by the Student Union Board. If this change is passed, it will take effect in January, 1989.

However, all of this is up to student participation in voting. For this change to pass the selection committee, it is required that 51% of the student body vote. Of the votes, two-thirds in favor are needed to pass.

From the Editor's Desk

By KRISTINA SCHUBACH

In the past two issues of STUFF, we have tried new ways to improve not only the look of the paper, but its content as well. By adding new reporters to our staff, working with new advisors, establishing and meeting deadlines, and generally being as open to new ideas as we can be, our idea of what this college newspaper should be is starting to become a reality — a respected, informative, journalistically sound student newspaper.

In keeping with this concept, and as a part of being open to try new things, this issue of STUFF contains four pages of articles and photos dedicated to student leaders on campus, and put together by the Student Affairs office. It was the hope of Student Affairs to recognize these are within the grasp of their sons and daughters."

Students eligible for Endowment assistance must be Indiana residents enrolling in an approved public or private Indiana post-secondary school. Only full-time, undergraduate students may qualify. Applicants must fill out the Indiana Financial Aid Form (FAF), and must be certain to check the SSACI/Lilly Endowment box on Item 93 of section O. The form is available through the State Student Assistance Commission of Indiana (SSACI), financial aid offices leaders and their accomplishments; however, instead of coming out with another paper, they felt it would be more appropriate to include articles about Saint Joe student leaders in Saint Joe's student newspaper. STUFF agreed.

While we are continuing our efforts to publish the best possible newspaper we can, it cannot be only up to us. As always, we encourage student feedback such as suggestions for new ideas, replies to articles or editorials, or any general comments concerning the look of the paper. Probably the best way to get your opinions expressed is through Letters to the Editors. All letters can be sent to P.O. Box 772, or slide them under the office door located in the chapel basement.

and high school guidance counselors. Students who have already filed an FAF will automatically be considered for Endowment assistance. SSACI will process applications according to the guidelines set by Lilly Endowment. Award notice will go out in May; awards will be paid to the students' schools, and will appear as a credit on the student's college bill.

Questions about the Lilly Endowment assistance programs should be directed to the State Student Assistance Commission of Indiana, 964 North Pennsylvania Street, Indianapolis, Indiana 46204, (317) 232-2350.

Letters to the Editors

Gentlemen (Ladies):

The very existence of the Hanson Recreational Center is a bold, positive step in the right direction. The extensive use of the facility demonstrates the strong need for such an all-purpose facility on the campus of Saint Joseph's College. Furthermore, we have a golden opportunity to enhance the relationship between St. Joseph's College and the Rensselaer community since recreational facilities in town are nonexistent, or are available for limited use only.

However, the Advisory Committee, under current policies, is required to meet "no less than two times per semester." We are expected to review the general operation of the building, and to review procedures and policies so that we can make necessary recommendations to the Athletic Director, William Hogan, and the President of Saint Joseph's College, Fr. Charles Banet.

Given the purpose of this Committee, I requested a meeting to discuss recent policy changes that were implemented without consulting the Committee, and several complaints which I had received from faculty and staff members. I am quite satisfied with reassurances that recent policy changes were quickly approved for safety reasons and then sent to Committee for discussion. This was primarily a response to the congestion during the 3-6 p.m. time slot, and walkers were asked to use the facility during hours when demand was not as extensive. In addition, as I understand it, proposed policy changes normally begin at the Committee level, and are then forwarded to the appropriate administrative authorities for further deliberations.

However, one of the main concerns I expressed at the meeting was the use of the Hanson Recreation Center by unauthorized individuals. There are many people, besides students and employees, who are authorized to fully utilize the Rec Center (i.e., alumni, guests, spouses and children of employees, and contributors). Consequently, there are some unauthorized users of the facility who are able to sneak past employees of the Rec Center. I feel that if this happens on a limited basis, or even once, and a member of the Saint Joseph's College community is forced to forego use of the facility or is unduly inconvenienced, we are allowing a gross disservice.

The easiest solution could be to monitor the traffic flow into the Recreation Center, much like we presently control entry into the College cafeteria, or restrict use of our Library materials. In fact, since contributors are allowed to use the facility, current policy proposals are focusing on some sort of an ID card for them (like the one required for use of Lake Banet). Why bother to consider such a card if we will check it in a cavalier, ad hoc fashion? Furthermore, students already possess identification cards and would also be expected to present them to gain entry into the facility. This would remove all doubt about whether or not a user of the facility actually belonged there. In addition, it would extricate employees from the difficult, at best, position of having to challenge Recreation Center users after they are already inside the building.

In our committee discussions, employee cost was cited as a key factor in such a proposal. I would agree with that assessment, but would hope that fruitful discussion of the proposal can continue. As a further inducement for its consideration, one could monitor traffic flow and also require that all Recreational Center users carry in an extra pair of athletic shoes which have not been exposed to outdoor use, so that we are not faced with the prospect of replacing the floor of the Recreation Center in the near future. We must consider such huge long-run benefits, which would be well worth the short-run costs.

In closing, I feel that serious dialogue between members of the College community and members of the Advisory Committee is helpful and quite healthy. The use of the Hanson Recreation Center peaks during the second semester and I, as an Advisory Committee member, welcome any input on how to improve the operation of the facility. We must ensure that students are top priority, even if, someday, we must move in the direction of a more limited varsity utilization of the facility. Don't let your concerns about the Recreation Center melt away with the Spring thaw! The Committee has, at least, one more meeting this semester, and problems which are there now will only return, once again, next November or December.

David E. Owens,
Hanson Recreation Center
Advisory Committee Member

Dear editors,

In the last edition of STUFF, I wrote a letter concerning the excitement that existed at the Kentucky Wesleyan game and I relayed the thankfulness of the players for the crowd's support. I had hoped it was just the beginning of a new enthusiasm, an enthusiasm that would continue and flourish. I would be disappointed.

Just one week later, in a game that was nerve-wracking enough to incite a riot, there was less crowd response than a thrilling Core lecture would receive from the Senior class during their last month of college.

Okay, the crowd did come to their feet during the game. With 8 seconds left, St. Joe tied the game. At that point, and with much provoking, the students grudgingly stood and cheered for the final seconds of regular play. I don't know, maybe it was something they ate for dinner that didn't agree with them, that made them to weak to stand. Whatever the reason, it was back to reclining lazily on their backsides for the not one, but two overtimes.

At that point I was resigned to the fact that the prior week had been a fluke. Whatever influence the fans had on last week's game was definitely not a product of a pseudo-hoosier upbringing or any basketball background at all. I wish I could thank the fans two issues in a row, but as far as I'm concerned only the players themselves and a handful in the crowd deserve any thanks at all.

A Disappointed Cheerleader

Tim Stefaniak, Freshman Class President

The chairpersons of the Student Union Board have acquired their respected positions by obtaining an application and submitting it to the current board. No previous involvement with S.U.B. is required in order to seek a position with the exception of the executive director.

Nothing can be more rewarding than having an event be a success. However, the preparation which goes into organizing an event can be time consuming. At first, initial contact with the agent is made. Making this contact allows a date and a price to be set. Then later (prior to the performance) contact is made to secure the performer and set details for the contract.

As the anticipated date approaches, promotion must be set into motion. Once the day of the performance finally arrives, there is always much to be done. There are usually last minute details to see to. These details are usually things like meeting the performer, setting up, and afterwards, tearing down.

If the event has run smoothly, and attendance has been good, all the work is worthwhile if everyone had a good time.

The funding for events on campus is provided by the Student Association and for the 1988-1989 academic year, the funds available should approximate $44,000. S.U.B. is responsible for the bands, films, special events and lecture opportunities at Saint Joseph's College.

By JOHN RICKERT

On February 15, the nominations for the Senior of the Year Award were completed. This year's nominees are: Tim Daly, Maureen Field, Deb Freche, Kevin Michalski, and Natalie Penz.

"I was surprised when I was told I was nominated. I thought I had a fair chance of being nominated. This is a big honor for me" said Michalski.

Deb Freche echoed Michalski's thoughts. "When Fr. White told me that I was nominated, I was very excited and surprised. I was not counting on winning a nomination. This means a great deal to me because we are chosen by our peers. That makes the nomination special."

"I am very happy that the senior class nominated me for this very prestigious award. I am very honored that I was nominated, and I hope to do well in the interviews" said SA President Tim Daly.

What Daly was referring to, is the next step in the award process. Each nominee will be interviewed by the Alumni board to decide the recipient.

Spring Break Fever Contagious

By ANDREA DENNIS

It is that time of year again when spring fever storms across college campuses luring students to seek fun in the sun. Symptoms are clear: sleeping through lectures, boozing it up the night before a big exam, arriving to class late, and handing in half-completed assignments. When these symptoms set in, there is only one thing to do — find the fastest way out of Rensselaer.

Popular hot spots this year, and they are hot, consist of the plentiful beaches of that "sunshine" state, Florida. But, why would 32 percent of the students surveyed want to travel hundreds of miles just for one week?

On the Dial ...

By DONALD J. PITCHER

There are some things here at Saint Joe that you can just about always take for granted. Loud dorm neighbors at 3:00 a.m., sleep-inducing Core lectures, and of course the nightly "gourmet guessing game" sponsored by the cafe. But for the last couple of years, I have been involved with something here on campus that I know shouldn't be taken for granted. That "something" is the college FM radio station, WPUM.

WPUM is different than most radio stations in that we have

Well, some go to visit friends and relatives, although the majority go to soak up a few rays in order to be tan for a night on the town.

Other fun-seeking students, however, have their minds on something quite different — an action-packed week on the Rockies. These students do not seem to mind the crisp cold weather, so long as they have skis on their feet and moguls to conquer. After all, if the action gets too tough for these "snow bunnies," they can just hop into a steaming mountainside hot tub to relieve their aching muscles for the next day on the slopes.

the advantage of a wide ranging format. Not only do we offer a diverse selection of artists, from those already established to others just breaking out, but our very sound changes throughout the day. By covering the large spectrum from light rock and jazz in the morning, all the way to hard rock at night, we can appeal to the large number of musical tastes in and around St. Joe.

And you as listeners help define that variety. Your feedback — mainly through the songs that you call in and request — is taken into direct account as to what sort of bands we play, how song positions on our weekly TOP 20 are determined, and generally in what direction the station moves.

One of the biggest changes at WPUM this semester has been an increase of our "on-air" hours. On February 15, we began signing on weekdays at 7:00 a.m. It seems that we just had a few jocks crazy enough to show up at that hour, so we teamed them up in pairs and turned them loose. So far it has been just about what we were planning for: two hours of assorted music and mayhem. We have had everything from Morning Dorm Traffic Reports, to long distance phone calls (on air) to find out the costs of shipping a Burmese tiger across country, and the chance for students to call in and win the All American Continental Breakfast-in-Bed (frosted Pop-Tarts and Coke) delivered right to their dorm room. I think you can get the picture ...

In addition to now being on earlier during the week, we are also now on the air both Saturday and Sunday from 9:00 a.m. all the way until midnight.

Again, I'd like to stress that WPUM is YOUR radio station and we are striving to give you what you want. Just let us know if you want to hear newer music, alternative bands, more Top 20, less hard rock — whatever. We are as close as the telephone — just dial extension 119.

WPUM is located at 90.5 on your FM dial. Take advantage of it — tune us in and let us turn you on.

Out of the Blue ...

The Ears, Nose And Throat Chorus

By CHRISTOPHER HELTON

I was in Core lecture the other day. It was a cool crisp morning, the snow was nearly gone outside along with most of the ice. Within the Science Building, people were gathering, awaiting the start of the lecture. Dr. Garrity ascended to the podium and began his lecture about the Odyssey when a sound rose above the noise of the gathered students. The first strains of the Ears, Nose, and Throat Chorus was heard over the public address system.

A light and delicate "HACK HACK HACK" could be heard coming from the throat of the first cough. This was quickly followed by the strains of "SNIFFLE SNIFF" from the second nose. These two sounds rose and rose, building upon the basic melody. They intertwined and mingled into the refrains of the harmony. Suddenly, the peace of these two were shattered by the crashing bass of the honker section, all four of them working together perfectly with an earthshattering "HONK."

Yes, this was one of the better performances of this year's Cold and Flu season. The auditorium was packed to capacity for this performance, probably one of the best of this season.

Few people enjoy a good performance of the Ears, Nose and Throat Chorus as much as I do. Some people just have no "ear" for music I guess.

I have been following the shows of the Ears, Nose and Throat Chorus as they have been performing around North America during their latest tour. I caught their amazing performance a couple of weeks ago at the Opening Ceremonies of the 1988 Winter Olympics. Their rendering of the song "Midnight" from the musical Cats, played on their special silk hankies nearly brought a tear to my eye, and then when they went into "Don't Cry For Me Argentina," I almost broke down. The only bad thing about their performance was the fact that the Opening Ceremonies theme was not show tunes. If they hadn't been kicked out for violating local good taste laws, I am confident that they would have brought the house down.

After Calgary, the Chorus flew down to New Orleans to play at Mardi Gras. They came within three bands of playing live on MTV with Buster Poindexter, but unfortunately they had to drop out when someone gave the Chorus drinks spiked with cold pills and they couldn't perform again that day. I suspect that this bit of espionage was brought about by the Chorus' archenemies, the Hayfever Blues Band, but I don't have any proof and the Band denies being anywhere near New Orleans. I personally think that they're lying, but that's another story.

Even though they did not get to perform on MTV, the Chorus did give a short show the next day. They did "When the Saints Come Marching In" in a small packed jazz club somewhere on Bourbon Street.

All in all, even though they did not get to perform on MTV, the Chorus enjoyed their stay in New Orleans and they promised to return again next year. The performance the other day during the Core lecture was the last North American performance of the Chorus. However, anyone interested in seeing them perform can catch them during their European tour which will be going through Norway and Sweden. Also, they will be putting on a benefit show on Daytona Beach during Spring Break, so be sure to ask the desk person at the hotel that you'll be staying at for the date and time of their performance which was not available at press time. Until next time, I'll be at the beach. Enjoy yourselves during Spring Break, and if you feel compelled to go to Florida, try to avoid the foaming snowbirds that they've been having problems with down there.

Men's Track To Start March 4th

By MIKE MONAHAN

The St. Joseph's College men's track team has been practicing since January 25th in preparation for the upcoming season.

There are fifteen people in track, not including the field event people. "Everyone practices, but not all at the same time," says freshman phenomenon Scott Brady. He will run the 400 meter and the 800 meter races. A typical practice consists of this: the short distance runner sprints two to three lap intervals while the long distance runners run from three to eight miles. Practice is usually held in the Rec Center except for one or two days when they go outside. Tuesday's and Thursday's the Puma track team lifts weights.

The captains are Bill Massoels and James Toombs. Senior Mike Boyda will be a strong point once again. After spring break the track team will welcome freshman Jerry Redmond who finished 4th in the Indiana state track meet in the 800 meter event.

The track season opens March 4th with an indoor open meet at Indiana. The first outdoor meet is March 18 at Olivet Nazarene.

Communications Seminar Is Set For March 14th

The Communications and Theatre Arts Department at Saint Joseph's College has announced its first day-long Communications Seminar on Monday, March 14th.

Professionals in television, radio, theatre, and advertising will be in attendance to provide you with up-to-date career information in various areas, including graduate school. All participants are alumni of Saint Joseph's College, and can provide you with insight about exciting careers in radio, television, theatre, and advertising, and how Saint Joseph's helps in preparation.

Mark your calendar for Monday, March 14th. The Communications Seminar may be your ticket to the future in a communications field!

Pumas Suffer Setback

By BRENDAN FOLEY

Defeat's evil grasp stole the thrill of victory from the St. Joseph's College men's basketball team Saturday. Great Lakes Valley Conference rival Lewis University overcame the Pumas 88-86 after two overtimes on a last second shot by guard Mike Patterson. St. Joe's controlled the tempo in the first half as Todd Kennard led the Puma fast break with 17 points at intermission (23 in the game). With the score 12-9 in favor of Lewis, and 15:04 remaining, St. Joe's went on a 12-2 run creating a seven point lead.

Kennard had three consecutive baskets, followed by an earth shattering double-pump dunk by Rodney Gates. But Lewis came back, capitalizing on several Puma turnovers, and the count stood at 27-27 with 5:15 left in the half. Puma guard Jerry Alicea hit a three pointer to cap the scoring for the half and to give the Pumas a 38-35 lead.

St. Joe's jumped out to a six point lead early in the second half with the assistance of two three point plays by Stan Kappers. However a stifled Puma running game allowed Lewis to stay close, and eventually to build a three point lead with 14:37 in regulation. With Chris Brown on the line shooting one and the bonus at 3:52, Kappers tipped in the miss on the first attempt, which was the third such miss of the half. This kept the Pumas within two and set the stage for a Gates lay-up off of a pass from Kappers to tie the game at 69 and send it into overtime.

Foul shooting continued to plague the Pumas in the five minute overtime period as they missed the front end of the bonus twice in a row. It took a long range bomb by Jerry Alicea with six seconds left to send it into the second overtime. A Lewis steal off of the full court trap with the game tied 86-86, set the stage for Patterson's jumper putting the game to rest.

Deno Nets 31 As The Lady Pumas Roll 87-70

By MIKE MONAHAN

Last Saturday the Lady Pumas — ranked No. 19 in the nation — walloped Great Lakes Valley Conference foe Lewis University 87-70 at Alumni Fieldhouse.

The Lady Pumas led 15-7 after Candy Kleine followed up a missed layup by Karen Deno with 13:09 remaining in the first half. Lewis head coach Pattie Hie then called a time out, but the Lady Pumas increased their lead to 12 (23-11) with 10 minutes left. The Flyers scored six unanswered points to cut the lead in half. After a basket by Karen Deno, freshman Krista Eshoo hit a three point bomb to make the score 25-20 with 7:53 remaining. Deno kept the Pumas ahead by scoring all 6 Puma points in a four minute span. The Lady Pumas took a 16 point lead, 36-20, with 4:23 left and they were up 41-28 at the half as Karen Deno scored 11 points in the last ten minutes and had 15 to lead the Lady Pumas in scoring at halftime.

The first ten minutes of the second half Deno continued to dominate with 12 points including one basket where she pivoted all the way around — looking for someone — when she couldn't find anyone open she popped in a twelve footer from the side. With 15:19 left the Lady Pumas had a seemingly commanding 20 point lead, 55-35. Alicia Dobbels picked up her fourth foul on an apparent bad call that head coach Dave Smith wasn't too happy about and thus received a technical with 12:53 left. Laura Newton caught fire for Lewis and with 10:45 remaining the Lady Puma lead was down to 11 (59-48). Lewis' Candy Hummel scored 9 points in the final ten minutes including a 3 pointer and a layup that made the score 66-55 with 8:18 remaining in the game. The Flyers cut the lead to 8 with 5:27 left; however, that was as close as Lewis would get as sophomore Jeannette Yeoman hit 7 free throws down the stretch as the Lady Pumas won their sixth in a row. The Lady Pumas are now 22-2 overall and 9-1 in the GLVC. The 22 victories ties the school record for wins which was set in the 1980-81 season. The Lady Pumas host Ashland tonight at 5:45 as they look for their 23rd victory.
